Ever Turning Red and White

Lincoln: equal are all men.

The hand of trust and truth
he grasped.

Red and white- blood and smoke interlocked with each other.

The dead, the country, lifeless and still,
torn. stripped of life.

A
miracle once more out of reach of our hands.

The field of battle:
red and white-
blood-stained with the smoke of the limp and the celebrated lives, the sheet of whiteness covering the lifeless.

A miracle once more
in the form of man.

Lincoln, the key holder
of freedom and equality.

He stiched together our country:
red, white and blue
for all-

all colors
all races
outstretched
for
the miracle
we beheld:
Lincoln.
